

PRODUCT DEVELOPMENT

Product Development

Through the knowledge of our people, we have access to over 50 years of valuable experience in the specific field of minimal invasive healthcare. In combination with our in-house test lab and manufacturing capabilities, we are able to rapidly develop your product, enabling you to stay ahead of your competitors.

Stent Development

Within the dedicated stent development group, Fortimedix can offer you the complete development of an exclusive stent product, transforming your design input into a CE-marked device. This will guarantee an optimally balanced product, which is tailored to both your exact needs and those of the targeted market segment. In combination with the unique design, your sales force will be offered some strong marketing tools, which are a necessity for success in the highly competitive and innovative field of stenting today. Besides an exclusive stent development project, we can also provide you with one of our readily available OEM stents.

Product Upgrading

Our Product Improvement & Upgrading activities allow you to rapidly release a next generation of your existing device and to enter a next level of operation with your company. This enables you to anticipate changes on a dynamic marketplace or to improve your device on specific key performance aspects.

Product Benchmarking

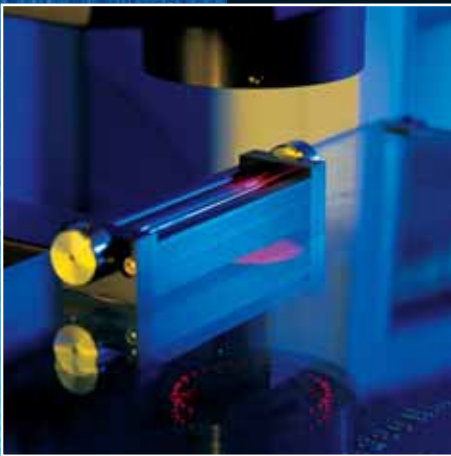

The Fortimedix Product Benchmarking services provide you with fast and independent relative data about the performance characteristics of your device without having to invest in competitors' products. You will obtain the managerial information that enables you to decide what should be your next step.

Other Developments

If you are interested in other Product Developments, please do not hesitate to contact us since we are also offering services for the development of other innovative Medical Devices in the fields of Interventional Cardiology, Interventional Radiology and Less Invasive Surgery.

We can assist you with CE certification of your device by providing efficient services, while supporting your market approach, saving you time and money.

We are the partner you need for Product Development activities, Feasibility Studies and CE marking.
